Commodore Silas H. Stringham, seen detailed to command the bigest against the rebels, is a native of co., N. Y. Hon. Thornton M. Nevin tes the following facts in regard to his y history in the Newburgh Telegraph:
Dantel Stringham, his father, resided a beginning of the present century just easiltomingburgh, across the county line in the town of Walkill. His residence a few rods cast of the Shawangunk kill.

was removed many years since. He keep Newburgh turnpike and the Middletown plank road, on the east bank of the kill. His wife, and the mother of Com. Stringham, was a Horton, aunt of the late G. H. Horton and of Sheriff Horton of this place, and is said to have been a woman of extraordinary mind and energy. It was while he resided here and kept the little country store on the Shawan-unk kill that Silas Horton Stringham was

When he was about seven or eight year of age, his parents removed to Newburgh, father taking command of a sloop plying tween Newburgh and New York; and at aid Newburgh academy he received the a tation fitting him for the important stall, which he has since occupied. which he has since occupied.

"Permit me to add one more fact, and temy saind a very significant one—I had it from Com. Stringham himself, with whom I have had a pleasant acquaintance for many years past; and that is, that he has never tasted any past; and that is, that he has never tasted any WE OFFER FOR SALE AT
